TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 23, 1887.

The Result.

A dispatch from Richmond, Ky., says Senator Harris is still in the race for Governor, and will go in the convention with two hundred votes.

The indications, however, point to Buckner's nomination on the first or second ballot, and the BULLETIN will not be surprised to see him given the honor by acclamation.

Bryan's nomination for Lieutenant Governor is about conceded, and Mr. Hardin, for Attorney General, leads Richards by a big vote, and will, in all probability, be nominated. Hewitt, for Auditor, and Tate, for Treasurer, are easy winners.

The returns, so far as heard from, as to Superintendent of Public Instruction, give Pickett 133, Boreing 134. These are the two leading candidates. Taylor, Thompson and Goodnight have a number of votes, and the winner can't be named.

As a friend of Senator Harris, the BULLETIN comes out of the recent skirmish badly disfigured, so to speak, but it is still in the ring.

The friends of Senator Harris and General Buckner should shake hands across the "bloody chasm," and let the past be forgotten.

The Democracy of Kentucky has spoken in no uncertain tones, and it has spoken in favor of the Hero of Fort Donelson. So be it. General Buckner will likely be the next Governor of Kentucky.

CAPITAL and immigration now have their faces turned towards old Kentucky, and the progress of the State in the immediate future will surprise our western friends. Come to Kentucky, young man, and grow up with the State. North-eastern Kentucky is already feeling the approach of the boom. Let us join the procession.

In the last Legislature of Rhode Island the Republicans had a majority of about eighty on joint ballot. They now have little or none at all, and the Democrats, in addition to this wonderful gain in the Legislature, elected all the State officers. It was a fight against the Republican abuses and corruption of twenty years, and right prevailed.

ONE of the cleverest gentlemen in the State of Kentucky, and a man well known in this section, is Colonel Frank Owens, of Maysville. He is one of the best business men in the land, a man well posted in general affairs, and qualified by education and experience to fill the position which his legion of friends are asking him to assume. This is the office of Lieutenant Governor. We have no candidate from this immediate section, and we can do no better than to instruct for Colonel Owens. He is a tried Democrat, a man of unblemished reputation and sterling qualities. Here's hoping these few lines may help him to a seat as presiding officer of the Senate.—Big Sandy News.

"Old John Robinson."

If you don't intend to visit but one circus and menagerie this season, take our advice, along with your family, and witness the only really big show that will come to Maysville this year, which is the Old John Robinson's Ten Big Gigantic New Shows Combined for 1887, and you will see a confederation of marvels and miracles and curiosities that has taken sixty-two years of diligent and faithful services to accumulate. Talk about the presumption of some shows calling themselves the oldest show on earth. John Robinson's big show is now on its fifty-ninth annual tour, and he will give a thousand dollars to any man who can come forward, testify, on oath, that there is a single showman on earth that can show a record of sixty-two years before the American public. One more year only, and then he will have been more than three times as long a proprietor of a combined circus and menagerie than any man in the world. John Robinson never divides, never splits up. It has been John Robinson's big show for sixty-two summers and winters, and the name of John Robinson's grandest, oldest, biggest and best of the big shows will be kept green and bright before the people for years and years to come, for the son, John F. Robinson, Jr., the able manager, and also the grandson of the old veteran showman, who also bears the name of his grandfathers, and notwithstanding the old war-horse is hale and hearty and eighty-four years of age, his scions will keep the name of Old John Robinson before the American people for many years to come. Remember that there is but one John Robinson big show, and it will come to Maysville, Friday, April 29th, as sure as the sun rises in the East and sets in the West.

A CHAT WITH SKOBELEFF.

Idiomatc Use of the English Language. Why the Nobility Hated Him.

Every one knows that he spoke most fluently French, German and English. I once heard him speak very fair Italian; and he had already picked up a considerable knowledge of Turkish. I asked once how it was that he spoke English so very idiomatically; and when he said that he had English nurses when a child, I suggested that they would not account for the fashionable and army slang he used so correctly. To this he only replied: "Oh, I once sailed a yacht at Cowes;" but, by the laugh which accompanied the answer, he evidently did not intend it to be taken as conclusive. He told me he thought his family was not originally Russian, and had heard vaguely that it might have been English. I suggested "Skobeleff"; but "No—not that, I think. Anyhow, I don't know who my great-grandfather was, and I don't care."

As we became more intimate our conversation turned on more serious matters; and I recollect his asking me whether I really thought he was popular with the officers and men of his corps. "Of course my aids tell me so from morning till night; but then they would say the same to the first general who may supersede me." I replied that, having known many of his officers and scores belonging to the other corps, I had heard him very frequently spoken of, and invariably in the most flattering manner. "As for the men of your command, I have several times been amused to find that, instead of swearing by the name of the Deity, they say, By Skobeleff! it's true!" At this he seemed much pleased. But when I added that he must not think too much of his popularity among the brother generals, whose best words for him were that with three or four more Skobeleffs there would be no Russian army left, he exclaimed, "Oh, generals! of course they are all jealous of me."

After a pause he continued, "And yet, if any one has cause to be discontented, it is I and not they. Just look at the men to whom they give their best civil and military appointments. Look at that pompous ass D. K.; at S., an amiable 'faineant,' at L., who is only fit to be a shopkeeper's clerk. As for me, 'Oh, there's Skobeleff; fighting's his trade, let him fight.' So I do the hard work and the others get rewarded." Presently, the same subject evidently ranking in his mind, he went on, "And you don't know, you can't imagine, how all the imperial family hate me. All these grand dukes have their rank, their titles, and their wealth; while all the beauty of Russia is at their feet, if they choose to throw the handkerchief; and they hate me because I have what they have not—a little military glory."—Amondjah Bey in St. James' Gazette.

How Hazing Began at West Point.

"I think that hazing began at West Point in 1827, my plebe year, and the same in which my old friend, Jefferson Davis, graduated. That year a young fellow—you would probably call him a dude in these days—entered the academy from one of the New England states, I forgot which one now. At any rate, the boys made him the first victim of the persecution since known as hazing. The treatment was very mild, and consisted of puns and satires upon his appearance, mimicry of his airs and graces, and, lastly, a seemingly accidental fall into a horse trough."—Gen. William Emory in Washington Post.

Death of a Well Known Business Man.

New York, April 26.—William D. Morgan, for several years connected with the Morgan line of clippers, died yesterday at his home in this city, of acute pneumonia. Mr. Morgan was born in Saybrook, Conn., in 1838, and was educated at Yale. In 1858 he entered into business with his father, Capt. E. E. Morgan, in the shipping business and continued it after the latter's death until steam vessels made an inroad into the old sailing vessel business. Mr. Morgan was vice president of the produce exchange and a pilot commissioner. He was connected with several banks and other financial institutions.

The Cost of Killing Jumbo.

New York, April 26.—A. R. Childs, attorney for P. T. Barnum, said to-day that the terms of agreement on which his client withdrew his suit for $100,000 against the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada for the loss of the elephant "Jumbo," were private. From another source it was learned, however, that the Grand Trunk people agreed to pay $5,000 in cash to Mr. Barnum, and haul his eight cars over the road free for one year. This is virtually a settlement for about $10,000 as Barnum's expenses on the same railway last year were $4,900.

Major Blaine's Funeral Postponed.

CHICAGO, April 26.—Mr. Blaine passed a quiet day yesterday. During the afternoon he took a short walk, accompanied by his wife, and spent the evening with his family. He has not decided when he will leave the city, but may possibly do so to-morrow. A dispatch was received from Hot Springs, saying that Mrs. Maj. Blaine was too ill to leave home before Tuesday or Wednesday. This will delay the funeral of Maj. Blaine at South Bend until the last of the week.

Corner Stone Laying.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, April 26.—About six thousand people, including delegations and orders from Omaha and Pacific Junction were present yesterday to witness the laying of the corner stone of a new Catholic cathedral, which is to cost $50,000. Bishop Cosgrove, of Davenport, performed the ceremony, and the Right Rev. Father Nugent, of Des Moines, preached the sermon. Bishop O'Connor, of Nebraska, and Father Westenhall, of Kansas City, in the exercises.

Mystery Cleared Up.

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—The mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Esther Garlick, who was found drowned in the Schuylkill river, on Friday evening, was sufficiently cleared up yesterday as to show that the woman committed suicide. She had been staying with a family on North Fourth street who had noticed her strange actions at times. She has frequently lived in houses of ill repute.

Lake Navigation Open.

St. Ignace, April 26.—The first boats of the season passed through the straits yesterday, bound up. There were six or seven of them, and the first was supposed to be the steam barge Calumet. They are now in the ice above McGulpian's Point and Point La Barb, and making slow headway for, although the ice is broken, it is packed together solid.

A Banker's Death.

DETROIT, Mich., April 26.—David Preston, for many years head of the banking house bearing his name in this city, died suddenly yesterday of diabetes.
